Easing the transition to the student life in Twente for international students

The amount of international students studying at the university has increased in recent years and it is expected this trend will continue. Many associations, but also many students, feel that the integration of these international students, especially those of non-Western origin, in the student life of Twente has to be improved. One of the first moments where this problem is encountered and also one of the periods that lie at the root of the problem is the Kick In, an important time for getting acquainted with the student culture and meeting new people. An extra day of preparation and better, especially smarter, promotion for the Kick In to foreign students could help with the integration problem.

Current problem:

The integration of internationals is not going as smoothly as hoped. The foreign students often do not get as involved as the Dutch students. This covers multiple aspects, from belonging in the social circles that are formed and making friends, to participating in activities and having a, what is regarded by Dutch standards, full and well rounded student period. We think that this problem starts either in the Kick In or shortly after, at the start of the academic year. International students get flooded with new experiences in a foreign environment and are not able to participate well in the socializing. Another important factor that causes problems in the integration process is the fact that many internationals don't participate in the Kick In at all. This subsequently causes them to get trapped in a social void at the start of the academic year.

The proposal:

Part 1:

Smoothen the integration of international students at the start of the Kick In by offering an extra program for the foreign students. The program would take place 1 day before the start of the Kick In and have as its primary goal to reduce the culture shock and take care of as many preparations as possible, like applications for the municipality, insurances, a bank account and buying and learning to ride a bike. This will allow the internationals to blend in better and will reduce the workload of the do group parents. These activities already take place in the current program, but they do so at a later time in the Kick In. It is necessary to offer these services at the start of the introduction to provide the aforementioned benefits. The length of the program could be limited to 1 day, to prevent raising the barrier of coming to the Kick In.

To prevent the misconception that this day alone is sufficient, there should be clarity in the naming of this program (e.g. 'International Pre-Kick In'). Furthermore, information about the Kick In can be offered and the possibility of registering for the Kick In should be made readily available.

Examples of programme parts are:

- The formality market (registrations, buying a bike, providing a phone/sim card)
- A workshop for riding a bicycle
- A simple language course
- A culture workshop, revolving around differences in culture and communication
- An introduction of the rest of the Kick In for example joining the pre-Kick In party

Part 2:

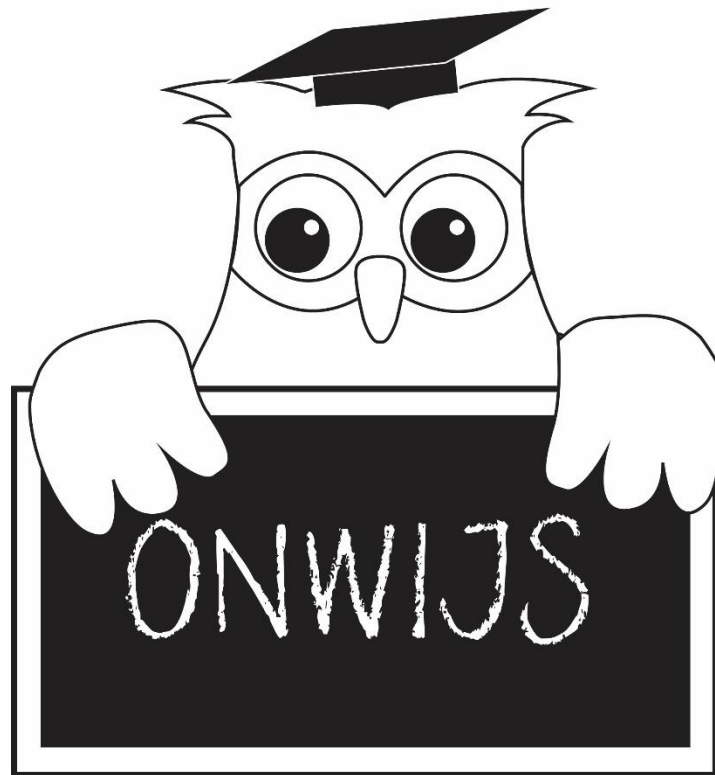

Promotion of the Kick In toward foreigners should differ from the promotion towards Dutch students. Currently, the letter that is sent to foreign students is merely a translation of the Dutch letter. There is no attention for possible differing interests between these two groups. The introduction period culture that is well known in the Netherlands, especially, is unknown of by foreigners.

The letter toward foreign students should be focused less on the partying aspect and more towards the importance of getting acquainted with the university, the students you are going to spend time with and other organisations and aspects that belong to the student life. Organisational aspects should also be stressed: the explanation of the university systems, the buying of the books before the courses and taking care of various other things that are needed before one can start studying.

Other communication methods, such as the study advisors and the international office, should also highlight the importance of joining the Kick In.
